

1 In a collaboration fuelled by customer demand, Francesca's Paints has made a range of colours to go with Aleta's Mughal-style fabrics. Shown, from left, is 'Cream Hibiscus' and 'Grey Jali Buti' (both £48 per m; 020 7228 9676; aletaonline.com) with 'India Berry', 'Mughal Earth', 'Hibiscus Blue' and 'Jali Grey' (from £34 per 2.5 litres; 020 7228 7694; francescaspaint.com).

1

2 This carbon-fibre and crystal-encrusted 'Jet' table (£14,000) designed for Swarovski by Brodie Neill is aptly named: it has flown halfway round the world since May and had airtime at the New York, Paris and London design shows. Ring 07908 867431, or visit brodieneill.com.

2

3

3 That burning passion you possess for all things Moorish will be fanned by After the Antique's bespoke hand-carved green-and-white-marble 'Moroccan' mantel. The price is £2,645 for a 1.6 x 1.2m example. Ring 01366 327210, or visit aftertheantique.com.

4 Toast has a knack for giving old favourites a contemporary tweak. In this instance, traditional Indian indigo-dyed cotton accessories have been given a foil-printed border ('Inessa' quilt, from £275; cushion, £45) and printed with metal pigment ('Khari Trellis' quilt, from £195).

Ring 0844 557 5200, or visit toast.co.uk.

4

5 A Moroccan teapot without a curved spout is about as useful as a chocolate one; the brew can't be poured into glasses from a great height, forming the essential frothy head. Martine Goron, creator of this zinc/copper/nickel-and-leather set (pot, £95 approx; glasses, £20 approx each), clearly understands this, being based in Morocco half the year. Ring 00 33 1 42 23 82 72 ■

5